When Eddie Trevino, while serving as PUB Board Counsel is paid over $1.2 Million to advise PUB and his billings are questioned by independent auditors, there should be cause for concern.

"However, we could not ascertain why Treviño was involved in the Project to that extent, given that there were six other firms associated with legal fees for the Project and given his role simply as Board counsel.... his billing details, it appeared that most of his invoices revolved around attending meetings, being included in conference calls, and being copied on emails."
